

COLOR BLIND TEST

How Well Can You See Color?

Remember The Dress?

If you were one of hundreds of people who thought it was gold and white and not black and blue, you might be colorblind.

While The Dress was a sneak-attack color blindness test, ours is here for your benefit. It's free, simple, and can give you the information necessary to set an appointment with your local optometrist.

Before we begin, let's cover some quick facts on color blindness:

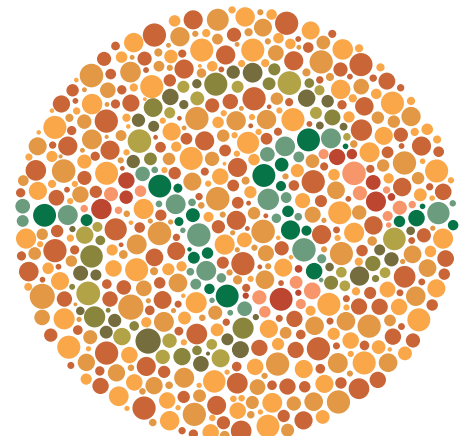

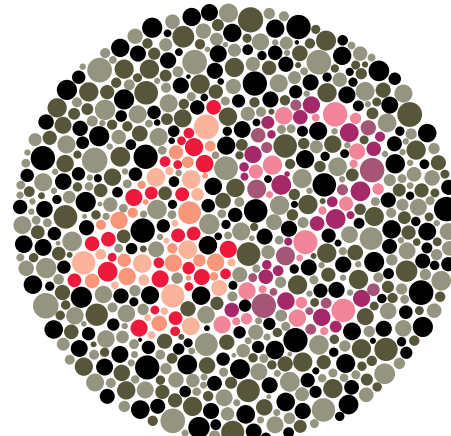

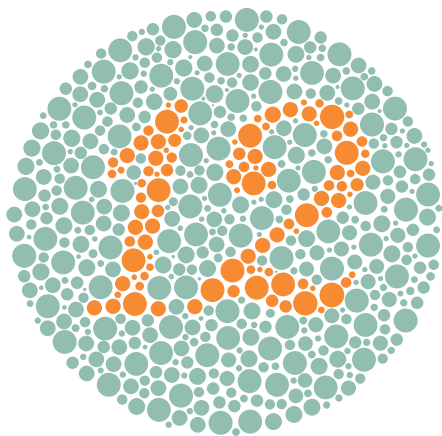

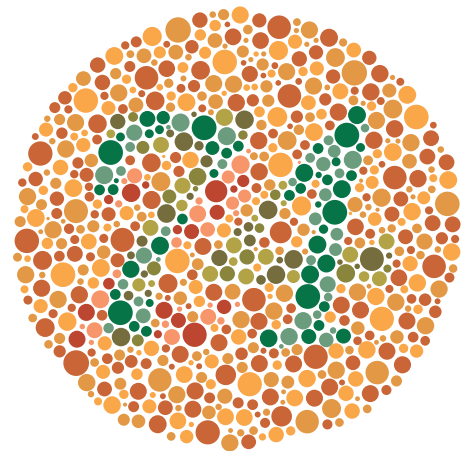

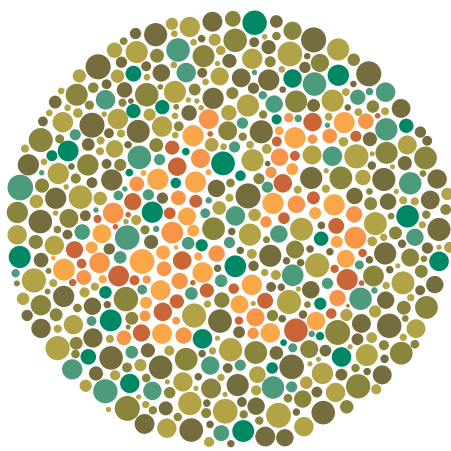

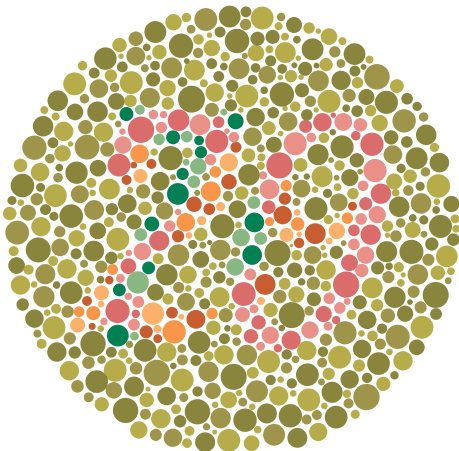

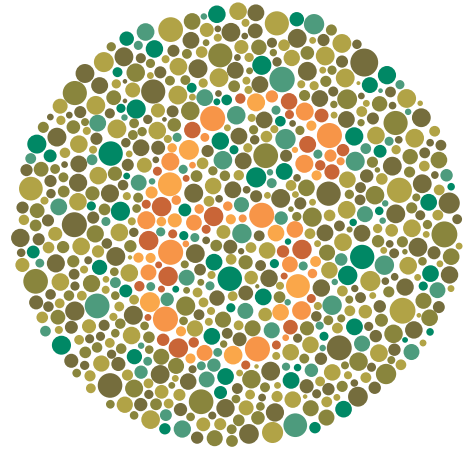

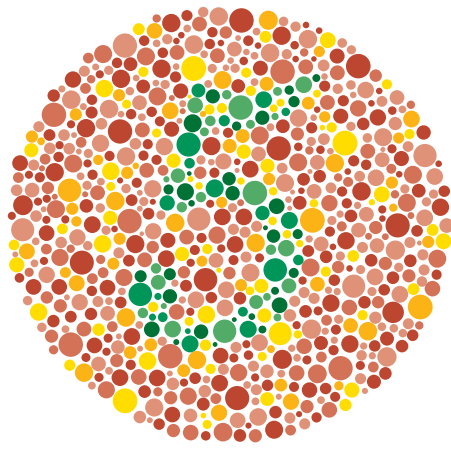

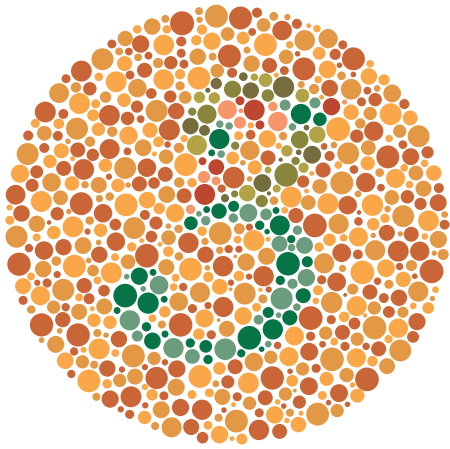

- Color blindness primarily affects males (the most common types of color blindness are associated with the X chromosome and males only have one).
- Red/green color blindness is the most common, blue/yellow is second.
- There are multiple subsets of each type of color blindness, dependent on which facets of the eye aren't functioning properly.
- If you're seeing gold and white where you shouldn't, it's time to investigate further.

HERE'S HOW THE COLOR BLIND TEST WORKS

1. Make sure that you are in a neutral environment (clean, white light and no filtered eyewear)
2. Look at the downloaded images (either printed or on your screen) and pick out the numbers you see in the circles.
3. Write down your results as you go along.

Compare what you've written down to the legend (located at the bottom of the Color Blind Test) and if you were unable to see or misidentified a number, make an appointment with your local optometrist to get a professional exam.

Left to Right, Top row: 3, 5, 6. Middle row: 29, 45, 74. Bottom row: 12, 42, squiggled line.
